BY THE SEA.

"Now, dear," said Mr. Breezy, leading his wife carefully over the sands, "you must wet your head first and then—"

"Do you suppose I never been in bathing before?" asked Mrs. Breezy, giving an extra tug at the skirt of her bathing suit, and looking over her shoulder to see if any vulgar men were taking in her more or less graceful costume. "Mr. Breezy, you talk as though I had lived all my life in the backwoods of Ohio and had never got a sniff of salt water. I am just as familiar with surf bathing as you are, Mr. Breezy, and I dare say a great deal more so. You know I was brought up on the Sound, and I know—"

"But my dear, the surf here at Long Branch is very heavy, and you must take good hold of the rope as soon—"

"Now, Mr. Breezy, I'm not a baby," said Mrs. Breezy, jerking her arm away from the grasp of her husband, and making a vain attempt to walk gracefully over the rough beach. "I'd like to see the way big enough to knock me over, and you needn't suppose I'm going to cling to that old rope and miss all the fun. The rope is all very well for the old people and the children. If you are afraid, Mr. Breezy, you had better go back to your bathhouse and put on your clothes."

"But you know, my dear, you can't swim, and there is a very strong undertow here, they say," said Mr. Breezy, once more grasping his wife's arm.

"Do let go of me, and for pity's sake stop acting like a fool," said Mrs. Breezy, making a dash forward and once more releasing her arm. "All the people will imagine we are on our wedding tour if you keep on in this way. You just shift for yourself, and let me alone for once in your life. I know you will have all you can do to keep from drowning without bothering me. You can't swim any more than I can, and I advise you to cling to the rope on your own account, and stick to it. For my part I'd rather be drowned than appear a coward."

"But simple prudence, my dear," said Mr. Breezy, stumbling over a piece of driftwood in the vain attempt to once more reach his wife.

"If I was a man I'd swear," said Mrs. Breezy, looking back scornfully at her better-half. "Of all the old grandmothers you go ahead. Do you think I came down here to be constantly told what I am to do? Am I of age, Mr. Breezy, or not? Tell me that."

"But you will stay inside the ropes, won't you, dear?" urged Mr. Breezy, stumbling along after his wife, and cursing the luck that ever brought him to the seashore.

"I don't know whether I will or not," said Mrs. Breezy, striding boldly toward the breakers and following him to the seashore.
